Overview

I enjoy working on the logic of the back-end side of things, as well as fiddling with and modifying the UI if needed. My goal is to provide clear and readable, easy-to-maintain lines of code, as I believe teamwork is important, so that it makes code review and implementation a smooth ride for everyone. I am very realistic and goal-driven, ready to accept any challenges and always willing to learn new things on the go.

I am interested in opportunities in web application development and learning more about server and system architecture.
